To investigate the effect of tetrandrine (Tet) on the proliferation and migration of human umbilical vein endothelial cells (HUVECs) and its possible mechanisms. HUVECs were cultured in complete medium with various concentrations of Tet (0.50 approximately 5.00 micromol x L(-1)). Proliferation of HUVECs in vitro was assessed by the cell counting kit-8 (CCK-8) method and BrdU incorporation assay. Migration of HUVECs was observed by the wound healing assay. Tet inhibited the proliferation and migration of HUVECs in a concentration-dependent manner. The half-inhibitory concentration of Tet was 2.21 micromol x L(-1). The migration speed of HUVECs was reduced, and the coverage rate was reduced. The migratory length, migratory rate and migratory velocity were also reduced significantly. Tet inhibited the proliferation and migration of HUVECs and the possible mechanisms may be related to the inhibition of vascular endothelial growth factor (VEGF) expression and tyrosine phosphorylation of vascular endothelial growth factor receptor-2 (VEGFR-2). Tet may be a new and potent compound for preventing and treating the post-angioplastic restenosis.
